Potential Meal Changes for 2022-23 School Year

In an effort to keep Toutle Lake Families informed, there are potential upcoming changes to school meals during the 2022-23 school year.

The Federal USDA waivers that allows school districts to provide lunches at no cost to students is set to expire on June 30, 2022. Unless the USDA extends the federal waivers for the upcoming school year, families who do not qualify for free meals can expect to resume paying full or reduced price for school meals.

At this time, families do not need to take any action. We will continue to communicate any changes that may occur with school meals for the upcoming school year.
