Simón Silva was born in Mexicali, Mexico, and grew up in the Imperial Valley near the Mexico/California border. Silva's family were migrant farm workers, and he worked the fields from elementary school until he was twenty-three. Simón Silva's renowned artwork has appeared in many distinguished places around the world, and his workshop, "Cultivate a Creative Mind," with educators, families, and students of all ages encourages participants to communicate using their natural artistic talent. Silva believes honing your artistic talent provides society with an opportunity to move forward with better communication skills and problem-solving capabilities. The message he hopes to spread is that everyone is important, and each of us has a piece of the solution, and it's our obligation to make a difference in the world.
