Special Education Communication for Parents and Families

In collaborating to address questions and resolve concerns, it is always best when possible to start with your child's teacher, or related service provider (If the concern involves a related service).

Need more help? The chart to the right provides a recommended communication sequence. Individuals within the sequence may also suggest connecting with IEP team members or other professionals (i.e. guidance, school psychologists, therapists, etc.) who may be able to provide expertise and support.
